Sachi A. Hamai, Executive Officer-

Supervisor Burke made the following statement:

“The Board of Supervisors traditionally proclaims January as Cervical Cancer Awareness Month to draw attention to the many activities planned throughout Los Angeles County to focus attention on the importance of the early detection and prevention of cervical cancer.

“Approximately 550 women will be diagnosed with cervical cancer this year and 160 women will die of it unnecessarily because cervical cancer is a preventable disease.

“Although many strides have been made in reducing the incidence and mortality of cervical cancer, low income women and women of color remain at high risk. With the FDA approval of the first vaccine against the Human Papillomavirus or HPV, we have a new weapon in our fight against this disease. However, since the HPV vaccine will prevent only 70% of cervical cancers, it is still important that women receive an annual Pap test.

“To increase the number of women screened, the Office of Women’s Health provides access to free Pap testing for low-income women who call their 1-800 multilingual hotline. Through their efforts and those of their community partners and other community-based organizations, awareness is being raised that cervical cancer is preventable with routine Pap tests. Through the efforts of the Office of Women’s Health underserved women have increased access to screening, follow-up and treatment. No woman should have to die from a preventable disease.”
